- (1) Where a convicted person has been sentenced to a fine only and to imprisonment in default of payment of a fine and whether or not a warrant of distress has been issued under Section 9A, the court may make an order directing the fine to be paid on or before a specified date, not being more than 30 days from the date of the order, and in the event of this fine not being paid on or before that date may, subject to the other provisions of this Section, forthwith issue a warrant of committal. The court may, before making such order, require the convicted person to execute a bond, with or without sureties, conditioned for his or her appearance before the court on the specified date if the fine be not in the meantime paid. Upon the making of an order under this subsection the sentence of imprisonment shall be deemed to be suspended and the convicted person shall be released from custody.
- (2) In any case in which an order for the payment of money has been made on non-recovery of which imprisonment may be awarded and the money is not paid forthwith, the court may require the person ordered to make such payment to enter into a bond as prescribed in subsection (1) and, in default in doing so, may at once pass sentence of imprisonment as if the money had not been recovered.
- (3) The court may in its discretion direct that any money to which this Section applied may be paid by instalments at such times and in such amounts as it may deem fit but so nevertheless that, in default of payment of any such instalment as aforesaid, the whole of the amount outstanding shall become and be immediately due and payable and all the provisions of this Act and the Crimes Act 2016 applicable to a sentence of fine and to imprisonment in default of payment thereof shall apply to the same accordingly.
- (4) A warrant of committal to prison in respect of the nonpayment of any sum of money by a person to whom time has been allowed for payment under the provisions of subsection (1) or who has been allowed to pay by instalments under the provisions of subsection (3) shall not be issued unless the court shall first make as to his or her means in his or her presence: Provided that a court may issue such warrant of committal without any further inquiry as to means if it shall have made such inquiry in the presence of the convicted person at the time when the fine was imposed or at any subsequent time and the convicted person shall not before the expiration of the time for payment have notified the court of any change in his or her means or applied to the court for an extension of time to pay the fine.

- (5) After making inquiry in accordance with the provisions of subsection (4), the court may, if it thinks fit, instead of issuing a warrant of commitment to prison, make an order extending the time allowed for payment or varying the amount of the instalments or the times at which the instalments were, by previous order of the court, directed to be paid, as the case may be.
- (6) For the purpose of enabling inquiry to be made under the provisions of subsection (4), the court may issue a summons to the person ordered to pay the money to appear before it and, if he or she does not appear in obedience to the summons, may issue a warrant for his or her arrest or, without issuing a summons, issue in the first instance a warrant for his or her arrest.

- (2) Where it appears to the court that distress and sale of property would be ruinous to the person ordered to pay the money or his or her family or by his or her confession or otherwise, that he or she has no property whereon the distress may be levied, or other sufficient reason appears to the court, the court may, if it thinks fit, instead of or after issuing a warrant of distress, commit him or her to prison for a time specified in the warrant, unless the money and all expenses of the commitment and conveyance to prison, to be specified in the warrant, are sooner paid.
- (3) The period for which a person may be committed in prison in default or of in lieu of distress under this Section shall be:
 - (a) if the person has been sentenced to a term of imprisonment in default of payment of a fine, the period to which he or she was so sentenced; or
 - (b) in other cases such period as the court considers reasonable subject to the maximum laid down in Section 9A(2) relating to fine.
- (4) A person committed for non-payment under this Section may pay the sum specified in the warrant, with the amount of expenses therein authorised, if any, to the person in whose custody he or she is and that person shall thereupon discharge him or her if he or she is in custody for no other matter.
- (5) Where a person committed to prison for non-payment shall pay any sum in part-satisfaction of the sum adjudged to be paid, the term of his or her imprisonment shall be reduced by a number of days bearing as nearly as possible the same proportion to the total number of days for which such person is committed, as the sum so paid bears to the sum for which he or she is liable.

9D Payment after issue of warrant but before committal

Where a warrant has been issued under the provisions of this Act for non-payment of a fine, any payment made after the issue of such warrant but before the person in respect of whom the warrant has been issued has been taken into custody, being a payment insufficient to satisfy the sum mentioned in the warrant together with the amount of expenses therein mentioned, shall be deemed to be appropriated primarily in satisfaction, or part-satisfaction, of such expenses.

When a person who is convicted of an offence is undergoing, or has been sentenced to undergo, for another offence, a sentence involving deprivation of liberty, the punishment to be inflicted upon him or her for the first-mentioned offence may be directed to take effect from the expiration of the deprivation of liberty for the last mentioned offence. Except as aforesaid, a sentence of imprisonment, with or without hard labour, upon a conviction on indictment takes effect from the first day of the sittings of the court at which, the offender is convicted, and a sentence of imprisonment, with or without hard labour, upon a summary conviction takes effect from the commencement of the offender's custody under the sentence. A person who escapes from lawful custody while undergoing a sentence involving deprivation of liberty is liable upon recapture to undergo the punishment which he or she was undergoing at the time of his or her escape, for a term equal to that during which he or she was absent from prison, after the escape and before the expiration of the term of his or her original sentence, whether at the time of his or her recapture the term of that sentence has or has not expired.

charged, together with such particulars as may be necessary for giving reasonable notice of the nature of the offence charged.

91 Joinder of counts in a charge or information

- (1) Any offences may be charged together in the same charge or information if the offences charged are founded on the same facts or form, or are part of, a series of offences of the same or a similar character.
- (2) Where more than one offence is charged in a charge or information, a description of each offence so charged shall be set out in a separate paragraph of the charge or information called a count.
- (3) Where, before trial or at any stage of a trial, the court is of the opinion that an accused may be embarrassed in his or her defence by reason of being charged with more than one offence in the same charge or information, or that for any other reason it is desirable to direct that the person be tried separately for any one or more offences charged in a charge or information, the court may order a separate trial of any count or counts of that charge or information.

92 Joinder of two or more accused in one charge or information

- (1) The following persons may be joined in one charge or information and may be tried together, namely:
 - (a) persons accused of the same offence committed in the course of the same transaction;
 - (b) persons accused of an offence and persons accused of abetment, or of an attempt to commit such offence;
 - (c) persons accused of more offences than one of the same kind, that is to say, offences punishable with the same amount of punishment under the same Section of the Crimes Act 2016 or of any other written law, committed by them jointly within a period of 12 months;
 - (d) persons accused of different offences committed in the course of the same transaction; or
 - (e) persons accused of any offence under Division 9.2, 9.3 or 9.5 of the Crimes Act 2016, and persons accused of receiving or retaining property possession of which is alleged to have been transferred by any such offence committed by the first-named persons, or of abetment or of attempting to commit either of such offences.

- (2) Where, before trial or at any stage of a trial, the court is of opinion that the interests of justice require that one or more of several accused who are included in the one charge or information be tried separately from the others, it may so order and separate trials shall thereupon be held as ordered.

93 Rules for the framing of charges and information

The following provisions shall apply to all charges and information and, notwithstanding any rule of law or practice, a charge or information shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, not be open to objection in respect of its form or contents if it is framed in accordance with the provisions of this Act:

- (a) Mode in which offences are to be charged:
- (i) a count of a charge or information shall commence with a statement of the offence charged, called the statement of offence;
 - (ii) the statement of offence shall describe the offence shortly in ordinary language, avoiding as far as possible the use of technical terms, and without necessarily stating all the essential elements of the offence and, if the offence charged is one defined by a written law, shall contain a reference to the Section of the written law defining the offence;
 - (iii) after the statement of the offence, particulars of the offence shall be set out in ordinary language, in which the use of technical terms shall not be necessary:
Provided that where any rule of law or any written law limits the particulars of an offence which are required to be given in a charge or information, nothing in this sub-paragraph shall require any more particulars to be given than those so required;
 - (iv) the forms set out in the Schedule or forms conforming thereto as nearly as may be shall be used in the cases to which they are applicable; and
 - (v) where a charge or information contains more than one count, the counts shall be numbered consecutively;
- (b) Provisions as to statutory offences:
- (i) where a written law defining an offence states the offence to be the doing or the omission to do any one of a number of different acts in the alternative, or the doing or the omission to do any act in any one of a number of any different capacities, or with any one of a number of different intentions, or states any part of the offence in the alternative, the acts, omissions, capacities, intentions or other matters stated in the alternative in the written law may be stated in the alternative in the count charging the offence; and
 - (ii) it shall not be necessary, in any count charging an offence defined by a written law, to negative any exception or exemption from, or proviso or qualification to, the operation of the written law defining the offence;
- (c) Description of property:
- (i) the description of property in a charge or information shall be in ordinary language and such as to indicate with reasonable clarity the property referred to and, if the property is so described, it shall not be necessary, except where required for the purpose of describing an offence depending on any special ownership of property or special value of property, to name the person to whom the property belongs or the value of the property;
 - (ii) where the property is vested in more than one person and the owners of the property are referred to in a charge or information, it shall be sufficient to describe the property as owned by one of those persons by name with others, and if the persons owning the property are a body of persons with a collective name, such as a firm or “inhabitants”, “trustees”, “club” or other such name, it shall be sufficient to use the collective name without naming any individual;
 - (iii) property belonging to or provided for the use of any public establishment or department may be described as the property of the Republic; and
 - (iv) coin and bank or currency notes of Nauru or of any foreign country may be described as money and any allegation as to money, so far as regards the description of the property, shall be sustained by proof of the amount of money, whether coin, bank note or currency note, even though the particular species of coin or note of which that amount was composed is not proved and, in cases of stealing, embezzling and obtaining by false pretences, by proof that the accused person dishonestly appropriated or obtained any coin, bank note or currency note, or any portion of the value thereof, even though that coin, bank note or currency note may have been delivered to him or her in order that some part of the value thereof should be returned to the party delivering it or to some other person and that part has been returned accordingly;

(d) Description of persons:

The description or designation in a charge or information of the accused, or of any other person to whom reference is made therein, shall be such as is reasonably sufficient to identify him or her, without necessarily stating his or her correct name or his or her abode, style, title or occupation and, if, owing to the name of the person not being known or for any other reason, it is impracticable to give such a description or designation, a description or designation shall be given such as is reasonably practicable in the circumstances, or the person may be described as "a person unknown";

(e) Description of documents:

Where it is necessary to refer to any document or instrument in a charge or information, it shall be sufficient to describe it by any name or designation by which it is usually known, or by the purport thereof, without setting out any copy thereof;

(f) General rule as to description:

Subject to any other provisions of this Section, it shall be sufficient to describe any place, time, thing, matter, act or omission whatsoever to which it is necessary to refer in any charge or information in ordinary language in such a manner as to indicate with reasonable clarity the place, time, thing, matter, act or omission referred to;

(g) Statement of intent:

It shall not be necessary in stating any intent to defraud, deceive or injure to state an intent to defraud, deceive or injure any particular person, where the written law defining the offence does not make an intent to defraud, deceive or injure a particular person an essential ingredient of the offence;

(h) Mode of charging previous convictions:

Where a previous conviction of an offence is alleged in a charge or information, it shall be alleged at the end of the charge or information by means of a statement that the accused has been previously convicted of the offence at a certain time and place without stating the particulars of the offence;

(i) Use of figures and abbreviations:

Figures and abbreviations may be used for expressing anything which is commonly expressed thereby; and

(j) Gross sum may be specified in certain cases of stealing:

Where a person is charged with stealing, it shall be sufficient to specify the gross amount of property alleged to have been stolen and the dates between which the stealing is alleged to have been committed without specifying particular times or exact dates.

94 Person convicted or acquitted not to be tried again for same offence

A person who has been once tried by a court of competent jurisdiction for an offence and convicted or acquitted of that offence shall, while such conviction or acquittal has not been reversed or set aside, not be liable to be tried again on the same facts for the same offence or any offence in respect of which he or she could have been convicted on the charge, or any count of the charge, of which he or she was acquitted and, if required by any court to plead to an information or charge in respect of such an offence, may, instead of pleading to the information or charge, plead that he or she has already been convicted or acquitted of that offence, and the court shall thereupon try whether that plea is true and only if it finds the plea to be untrue shall the court require him or her to plead to the information or charge or to the count relating to that offence.

95 Person may be tried again for separate offence

A person convicted or acquitted of an offence may afterwards be tried for any other offence with which he or she might have been charged on the former trial under Section 91(1), except an offence of which he or she could have been convicted on any charge, or any count of the charge, in respect of which he or she was acquitted.

96 Consequences supervening or not known at time of former trial

A person convicted of any act causing consequences which together with that act constitute a different offence from that of which he or she was convicted, may be afterwards tried for that different offence if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the court to have happened, at the time when he or she was convicted.

97 Where original court was not competent to try subsequent charge

Subject to the provisions of Section 273 (Offences under two or more Acts) of the Crimes Act 2016, a person convicted or acquitted of any offence constituted by any acts or omissions may, notwithstanding such conviction or acquittal, be subsequently charged with and tried for that or any other offence constituted wholly or in part by the same acts or omissions, if the court by which he or she was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he or she is subsequently charged.

100 Power to summon material witnesses and examine persons present

- (1) A court may at any stage of any proceeding under this Act, of its own motion or on the application of any party, summon a person as a witness, or examine a person in attendance though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine a person already examined, and the court shall, unless the circumstances make it impossible to do so, summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his or her evidence, or further evidence, appears to it essential to the just decision of the case:

Provided that the prosecutor, or the legal practitioner, if any, for the prosecution, and the accused, or his or her legal practitioner, if any, shall have the right to cross-examine any such person, and the court shall adjourn the case for such time, if any, as it thinks necessary to enable such cross-examination to be adequately prepared if, in its opinion, either party may be prejudiced by the calling of any such person as a witness.

- (2) The provisions of Part 8 of the District Court Act 2018 and Part 14 of the Supreme Court Act 2018 shall apply mutatis mutandis in respect of a person who fails to attend before any court in obedience to a summons issued under subsection (1) as though that summons had been issued under the said Acts.

101 Evidence to be given on oath or affirmation

Every witness in a criminal cause or matter shall be examined upon oath or affirmation, and the court before which any witness attends shall have full power and authority to administer the usual oath or affirmation:

Provided that the court may at any time, if it thinks it just and expedient for reasons to be recorded in the proceedings, take without oath or affirmation the evidence of a person who by reason of immature age ought not, in the opinion of the court, to be admitted to give evidence on oath or affirmation and the fact of the evidence having been so taken shall be recorded in the proceedings.

102 Refractory witnesses

A person who, attending either in obedience to a summons or by virtue of a warrant, or being present in court and being verbally required by the court to give evidence:

- (a) refuses to be sworn or affirmed;
- (b) having been sworn or affirmed, refuses to answer any question properly put to him or her; or
- (c) refuses or neglects to produce any document or thing which he or she is required to produce,

103 Compulsory disclosures not to afford evidence

In any proceedings in respect of any offence against any written law, a statement or admission made by a person in any compulsory examination or deposition before any court on the hearing of any matter in bankruptcy or insolvency is not admissible in evidence against that person.

104 Negative averments

Any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany in the same Section the description of the offence in the written law defining such offence, and whether or not specified or negated in the charge or complaint, may be proved by the accused, but no proof in relation thereto shall be required on the part of the complainant or prosecutor.

105 Cases where wife or husband may be called without the consent of the accused

- (1) In any inquiry or trial the wife or husband of the accused shall be a competent witness for the prosecution or defence without the consent of the accused:

 - (c) in any case where the accused is charged in respect of an act or omission affecting the person or property of the wife or husband of the accused or the children of either of them.

[subs (1) am Act 8 of 2011 s 12 and Sch 1[49], opn 15 Apr 2011; Act 18 of 2016 s 287 and Sch 2 clause 59, opn 12 May 2016]

- (2) For the purposes of this Part, no person shall be deemed to be the wife or husband of any other person unless they are lawfully married to one another.

106 Competency of accused and husband or wife as witness in criminal cases

A person charged with an offence, and the wife or husband, as the case may be, of the person so charged, shall be a competent witness for the defence at every stage of the proceedings, whether the person so charged is charged solely or jointly with any other person:

Provided that:

- (a) an accused shall not be called as a witness in pursuance of this Section except upon his or her own application;
- (b) the wife or husband of the accused shall not, save as provided in Section 105, be called as a witness except upon the application of that accused;
- (c) nothing in this Section shall make a husband compellable to disclose any communication made to him by his wife during their marriage, or a wife compellable to disclose any communication made to her by her husband during their marriage;
- (d) an accused who is a witness in pursuance of this Section may be asked any question in cross-examination, notwithstanding that it would tend to incriminate him or her as to the offence charged;
- (e) an accused who is called as a witness in pursuance of this Section shall not be asked, and if asked shall not be required to answer, any question tending to show that he or she has committed or been convicted of or been charged with any offence other than that wherewith he or she is then charged, or is of bad character, unless:
 - (i) the proof that he or she has committed or been convicted of such other offence is admissible evidence to show that he or she is guilty of the offence wherewith he or she is then charged;

- (ii) he or she has personally or by his or her legal practitioner asked questions of any witness with a view to establishing his or her own good character or has given evidence of his or her own good character, or the nature or conduct of the defence is such as to involve imputations on the character of the complainant or the witnesses for the prosecution; or
- (iii) he or she has given evidence against any other person charged with the same offence;
- (f) every person called as a witness in pursuance of this Section shall, unless otherwise ordered by the court, give his or her evidence from the witness box or other place from which the other witnesses have given their evidence; and
- (g) nothing in this Section shall affect the provisions of Section 202 or any right of the accused to make a statement without being sworn.

107 Procedure where accused is called as witness

Where the accused is called by the defence as a witness to the facts of the case, he or she shall be called as a witness immediately after the close of the evidence for the prosecution.

108 Right of reply

In cases where the right of reply depends upon the question whether evidence has been called for the defence, the fact that the accused has been called as a witness shall not of itself confer on the prosecution the right of reply.

109 Inquiry by court as to unsoundness of mind of accused

- (1) Where in the course of a trial or inquiry or at any time after a formal charge has been presented or drawn up, the court which has charge of the proceedings has reason to believe that the accused may be of unsound mind so as to be incapable of making his or her defence, it shall inquire into the fact of such unsoundness and, if the accused is not present in court and it appears to the court that it would be unreasonable to bring him or her before the court, he or she shall be interviewed by a magistrate, in whatever place is most appropriate, for the purpose of endeavouring to explain to him or her the nature of the charge and of hearing whatever he or she has to say which is relevant to the issue of insanity and the magistrate shall cause a note of the interview to be placed on the record of the proceedings.
- (2) Where the court is of the opinion that the accused is of unsound mind so that he or she is incapable of making his or her defence, it shall postpone further proceedings in the case and shall report the case to the President.
- (3) Where the case is one in which bail may be taken, the court may release the accused person on sufficient security being given that he or she will be properly taken care of and prevented from doing injury to himself or herself or to any other person, and for his or her attendance before the court or such officer as the court may appoint in that behalf.
- (4) Upon consideration of the court record or a copy thereof, the President may order that the accused be confined in a hospital or a suitable place of custody and the court shall issue a warrant in accordance with that order. Any such order of the President shall be sufficient authority for the detention of the accused person until the President shall make a further order in the matter or until the court which has found him or her incapable of making his or her defence orders him or her to be brought before it again in the manner provided by Section 112 and, while so confined, the accused shall be deemed to be in lawful custody.

110 Defence of unsoundness of mind at preliminary inquiry

Where the accused appears to be of sound mind at the time of a preliminary inquiry, the District Court, notwithstanding that it is alleged that, at the time when the act was committed in respect of which the accused is charged, he or she was by virtue of the provisions of Section 42 of the Crimes Act 2016 not criminally responsible for the act, shall proceed with the inquiry and, if the accused ought, in the opinion of the court, to be committed for trial on information, the court shall so commit him or her.

[s 110 am Act 8 of 2011 s 12 and Sch 1[49], opn 15 Apr 2011; Act 18 of 2016 s 287 and Sch 2 clause 60, opn 12 May 2016]

111 Defence of unsoundness of mind on trial

Where any act or omission is charged against a person as an offence and it is given in evidence on the trial of such person for that offence that by virtue of the provisions of Section 42 of the Crimes Act 2016, he or she was not criminally responsible for his or her act or omission at the time when the act was done or the omission made, then, if it appears to the court before which that person is tried that he or she did the act or made the omission charged but was not criminally responsible as aforesaid at the time when he or she did or made it, the court shall make a special finding to the effect that the accused was not guilty by reason of insanity. Where such a special finding is made, the court shall report the case for the order of the President and shall meanwhile order the accused to be kept in custody in such place and in such manner as the court shall direct. The President may order the accused to be confined in a hospital or in a prison or other suitable place of safe custody and, while so confined, the accused shall be deemed to be in lawful custody.

114 Procedure where accused does not understand proceedings

 - (a) in cases tried by the District Court, the court shall proceed to hear the evidence and, if at the close of the evidence for the prosecution and, if the defence has been called upon, of any evidence for the defence the court is of the opinion that the evidence which it has heard would not justify a conviction, it shall acquit and discharge the accused but, if the court is of the opinion that the evidence which it has heard would justify a conviction, it shall order the accused to be detained during the President's pleasure but every such order shall be subject to confirmation by a judge of the Supreme Court; or
 - (b) in cases which are the subject of trial by the Supreme Court:
 - (i) the District Court shall hear the evidence for the prosecution and, if satisfied that a prima facie case has been proved, shall commit the accused for trial by the Supreme Court and either admit him or her to bail or commit him or her to prison for safe keeping; and
 - (ii) [repealed]
 - (iii) if the Director of Public Prosecutions states to the District Court that he or she does not intend to file an information, the accused shall be at once discharged in respect of the charge made against him or her and, if he or she has been committed to prison, shall be released and, if on bail, his or her recognizance shall be discharged but such a discharge shall not operate as a bar to any subsequent proceedings against him or her on account of the same facts.

- (2) A person ordered under the provisions of this Section to be detained during the President's pleasure shall be liable to be detained in such place and under such conditions as the President may, from time to time, by order in writing, direct and, while so detained, shall be deemed to be in lawful custody.
- (3) The President may at any time, of his or her own motion or after receiving a report from a person or persons thereunto empowered by him or her, order that a person detained as provided in subsection (2) be discharged or otherwise dealt with subject to such conditions as to the person remaining under supervision in any place or by a person, and such other conditions for ensuring the welfare of the said person and the public, as the President shall think fit.
- (4) Where a person has been ordered to be detained during the President's pleasure under the provisions of subsection (1), the confirming or presiding Judge shall forward to the President a copy of the notes of evidence taken at the trial, together with a report in writing signed by him or her containing any recommendation or observations on the case he or she may think fit to make.

- (3) No judgment delivered by any court shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only of the absence of any party or his or her legal practitioner on the day or from the place notified for the delivery thereof, or of any omission to serve, or defect in serving, on the parties or their legal practitioners, or any of them, the notice of such day and place.

116 Contents of judgment

- (1) Any judgment in the trial of a criminal cause shall, except as otherwise expressly provided by any written law, be written by the presiding Judge or magistrate, or the magistrate having charge of the proceedings, as the case may be, in the language of the court, and shall contain the point or points for determination, the decision thereon and the reasons for the decision, and shall be dated and signed by the presiding Judge or magistrate, or the magistrate having charge of the proceedings, in open court at the time of pronouncing it:

Provided that where the accused has admitted the truth of the charge and has been convicted, it shall be a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this subsection if the judgment contains only the finding and sentence or other final order and is signed and dated by the presiding Judge, or magistrate, or the magistrate having charge of the proceedings, as the case may be, at the time of pronouncing it.

- (2) In the case of a conviction, the judgment shall specify the offence of which, and in the case of an offence defined by the Crimes Act 2016 or any other written law, the Section of the Crimes Act 2016 or the other written law under which, the accused is convicted and the sentence imposed.

121 Power of courts to award expenses or compensation out of fine

- (1) A court may, in its discretion, order the whole or any part of any fine imposed or money found on or in the possession of a person who has been, or is subsequently, convicted, or who has been, or is subsequently, discharged without conviction under the provisions of any written law following a finding that he or she is guilty of an offence, to be applied in or towards the:
 - (a) defraying of the costs or expenses properly incurred in the prosecution;
 - (b) payment to a person of compensation for any loss or injury caused by the offence of which the accused has been convicted or found guilty or by any other offence which is taken into consideration by the court in determining his or her sentence;

 - (d) payment to a person of compensation for any loss sustained by him or her in consequence of any order made under the provisions of this Part for the restitution or disposal of any property or thing.
- (2) In determining whether or not to impose a fine and in deciding the quantum of a fine, a court may take into account the fact that an order under subsection (1) would be appropriate but shall at all times have regard to the means of the accused as they appear or are known to the court.
- (3) Where an order is made under subsection (1) in a case which is subject to appeal, no payment ordered shall be made before the period allowed for presenting the appeal has elapsed or, if an appeal is presented, before the determination of the appeal.
- (4) At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, a court shall take into account any sum paid or recovered as compensation under this Section.
- (5) At any time before compensation has been paid in pursuance of an order made under subsection (1), if it appears to the court that:
 - (a) the loss or injury in respect of which the order was made has been held in civil proceedings to be less than it was taken to be for the purposes of the order; or
 - (b) where the order related to the loss of any property, the property has been recovered by the person in whose favour the order was made, the court may, upon the application of the accused, cancel or amend the order and by such amendment may, if it thinks fit, order that any part of the fine, if paid, be refunded to the accused.
- (6) Where the Supreme Court in the exercise of its appellate or revisional jurisdiction imposes or increases any fine or quashes an order of acquittal and imposes a conviction, it shall have the same powers to make an order under subsection (1) as though it were the court of first instance.

121A Compensation Orders

- (1) Where after the commencement of this Section a person, “the offender”, is found guilty of an offence the maximum penalty for which is imprisonment for a period of 3 years or more, and the offender is convicted or discharged without conviction and the court is satisfied that, as a direct result of the commission of the offence, a person other than the offender has suffered bodily injury or injury to property, the court may:

- (a) in respect of any bodily injury, order the offender to make compensation to that person by means of the payment of a specified amount of money not exceeding $10,000; or
- (b) in respect of any injury to property, order the offender to make compensation to that person by means of the payment of a specified amount or an amount to be assessed by a person appointed by the court not exceeding the reasonable cost of repair or replacement of the property.

 - (b) the amount to be paid pursuant to the order, or each instalment as it falls due, as the case requires, is a debt due to the person in whose favour the order is made.
- (4) Where an order is made under subsection (1) and the amount ordered to be paid is not paid on the due date, the person in whose favour the order is made may apply for and is entitled to an order attaching property under Part 2 of the Civil Procedure Act 1972 for recovery of the full amount to be paid whether or not an order for instalments had been made.
- (5) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Civil Procedure Act 1972, an order attaching property made under subsection (4) can be made against any real property in which an offender has any interest or any building in which an offender has an interest and which is constructed upon land owned by a person or persons other than the offender.
- (6) Where a conviction referred to in subsection (1) is subject to appeal, the court may in making an order under subsection (1) further order that pending the presentation of an appeal or of the determination of an appeal the payment of the amount is to be suspended but that the offender not dispose of any property without the approval of the court and, where the amount exceeds $5,000, provide surety to the value of the amount ordered to be paid.
- (7) Nothing in this Section shall be construed as removing or affecting a cause of action which a person may have to recover damages for bodily injury or injury to property suffered by the person, but in proceedings in relation to that cause of action the court shall have regard to an amount paid pursuant to an order made under this Section.

purchaser and on the restitution of the stolen property to the person entitled to the possession thereof, order that out of that money a sum not exceeding the price paid by the purchaser shall be delivered to him or her.

123 Promotion of reconciliation

124 Preservation or disposal of property

- (2) In every case referred to in subsection (1), the court before which any such offender is convicted, or discharged without conviction, shall have power to award from time to time writs of restitution for the property or to order the restitution thereof in a summary manner:

Provided that:

- (a) where goods as defined in the Sale of Goods Act 1893 of England in its application to Nauru have been obtained by fraud or other wrongful means not amounting to stealing, the property in those goods shall not revert in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his or her personal representative, by reason only of the conviction of the offender; and
 - (b) nothing in this Section shall apply to the case of any valuable security which has been in good faith paid or discharged by some person liable for the payment thereof or, being a negotiable instrument, has been in good faith taken or received by transfer or delivery by some person for a just and valuable consideration without any notice or without reasonable cause to suspect that the same had been stolen.
- (3) The operation of any order under this Section shall, unless the court before which the conviction or discharge takes place directs to the contrary in any case in which the title to the property is not in dispute, be suspended:
- (a) in any case until the time allowed for presenting an appeal has passed;
 - (b) in a case where an appeal is presented, until the determination of the appeal,
- and, in cases where the operation of any such order is suspended until the determination of the appeal, the order shall not take effect as to the property in question if the conviction is quashed on appeal, unless the Supreme Court so directs. The Chief Justice may make provision by rules for securing the safe custody of any property pending the suspension of the operation of any such order.
- (4) A person aggrieved by an order made under this Section by the District Court may appeal to the Supreme Court and upon the hearing of any such appeal the court may by order annul or vary any order made on a trial for the restitution of any property to a person, even though the conviction or order of discharge is not quashed; and the order, if annulled, shall not take effect and, if varied, shall take effect as so varied.

- (4) Where the person entitled to possession of the property is unknown or cannot be found, the Resident Magistrate shall direct that the property be detained in police custody and it shall thereafter be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of Section 28 of the Nauru Police Force Act 1972 as though it were property which has come into the custody of the police other than in connection with a criminal charge and the provisions of Section 31 of that Act shall apply to such property where appropriate.

129 Conviction of minor offence included in offence charged

- (1) Where a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars, one or a combination of some only of which constitutes another complete offence, and that one particular, or such combination, is proved but the remaining particulars are not proved, he or she may be convicted of that other offence although he or she is not charged with it.
- (2) Where a person is charged with an offence and facts are proved which reduce it to a minor and cognate offence, he or she may be convicted of the minor offence although he or she is not charged with it.

144A Erroneous sentence or process or warrant

Where the sentence was passed, or the process was issued, by a court having jurisdiction under any circumstances to pass such a sentence or to issue such process, or if the warrant was issued by a court or justice or other person having authority under any circumstances to issue such a warrant, it is immaterial whether the court or justice or person had or had not authority to pass the sentence or issue the process or warrant in the particular case; unless the person executing the same knows that the sentence or process or warrant was in fact passed or issued without authority.

A person who, being duly authorised to execute a warrant to arrest one person, arrests another person, believing in good faith and on reasonable grounds that the person arrested is the person named in the warrant, is not criminally responsible for doing so to any greater extent than if the person arrested had been the person named in the warrant. A person who lawfully assists in making such an arrest, believing that the person arrested is the person named in the warrant, or who, being required by the warrant to receive and detain the person named in it, receives and detains the person so arrested, is not criminally responsible for doing so to any greater extent than if the person arrested had been the person named in the warrant.

- (2) A notice under this Section of the intention to call a witness shall state his or her name and address and the substance of the evidence which it is believed that he or she will give. The Court shall determine whether the length of notice given was reasonable, regard being had to the time when and the circumstances under which the prosecution became acquainted with the nature of the evidence which the witness could give and determined to call him or her as a witness.
- (3) Nothing in this Section shall affect the admission of evidence lawfully tendered at the trial under Section 146.

198 Cross-examination of witnesses for the prosecution

Where the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution has been concluded and any written statements and depositions properly tendered in support of the prosecution case have been admitted, and the evidence or statement, if any, of the accused taken in the preliminary inquiry has, if the prosecutor wishes to tender it, been tendered in evidence, the court:

- (a) if it considers that, after hearing, if necessary, any arguments which the prosecutor or the legal practitioner conducting the prosecution and the accused, or his or her legal practitioner if any, may wish to submit, that a case is not made out against the accused, or anyone of several accused, sufficiently to require him or her to make a defence in respect of the whole information or any count thereof, shall dismiss the case in respect of, and acquit that accused as to, the whole of the information or that count, as the case may be; but
- (b) if it considers that a case is made out against the accused or any one or more of several accused in respect of any offence charged or any other offence of which he or she may lawfully be convicted on the trial of that offence, shall inform every such accused of his or her right to address the court, either personally or by his or her legal practitioner, if any, and to give evidence on his or her own behalf or to make an unsworn statement, or to refrain from doing either of these things and to call witnesses, or tender statements under Section 146, in his or her defence; and in all cases the court shall require him or her, or his or her legal practitioner if any, to state whether he or she intends to call any witnesses as to fact other than the accused himself or herself. If the accused says that he or she does not intend to give evidence or make an unsworn statement or to adduce evidence, then the prosecutor, or the legal practitioner conducting the prosecution, may sum up the case against him or her. If the accused says that he or she intends to give evidence or make an unsworn statement, or to adduce evidence, the court shall call upon him or her to enter upon his or her defence.

202 The defence

The accused, or his or her legal practitioner if any, may open his or her case, suiting the facts or law on which he or she intends to rely and making such comments as he or she thinks necessary on the evidence for the prosecution. The accused may then give evidence or make an unsworn statement on his or her own behalf and he or she, or his or her legal practitioner if any, may examine his or her witnesses, if any, and after their cross-examination, re-examine them, and may tender written statements in accordance with Section 146. Provided that no accused shall be entitled to any adjournment to secure the attendance of any witness unless he or she shows that he or she could not have taken earlier steps to obtain, or by reasonable diligence have obtained, the presence of the witness.

204 Evidence in reply

205 Closing addresses where accused adduces no evidence

Where no evidence is adduced by or on behalf of any accused and the court considers that there is evidence that he or she committed any offence charged in the information or any other offence of which he or she can lawfully be convicted on the trial of that offence, the prosecutor, or the legal practitioner conducting the prosecution, shall be entitled to sum up the case against that accused immediately all the evidence in the case has been given and the accused, personally or by his or her legal practitioner if any, shall then be entitled to address the Court on his or her own behalf.

206 Closing addresses where accused adduces evidence

Where any accused, or his or her legal practitioner if any, adduces any evidence, other than evidence given by the accused person himself or herself, he or she, or his or her legal practitioner if any, shall be entitled to sum up the case for the defence immediately after all the evidence in the case has been given and the prosecutor, or the legal practitioner conducting the prosecution, shall be entitled to reply and to sum up the case against that accused.

207 The judgment

The Court, having received all the evidence adduced by the parties and any other evidence properly admitted and having heard the addresses, if any, of the parties or their legal practitioners, shall, in respect of every offence charged in the information, either:

- (a) find the accused guilty of that offence, or of any other offence of which he or she can lawfully be convicted on the information, and, after making such inquiry as it thinks fit as to the accused's character and after hearing the accused or his or her legal practitioner, if any, as to any mitigating circumstances, and any evidence thereof which may be adduced, either convict him or her and pass sentence on, or make an order against him or her in accordance with the law or, if authorised to do under any written law, discharge him or her without proceeding to conviction; or
- (b) find him or her not guilty and acquit him or her:

Provided that, where, with the consent of the prosecutor and the accused or of their respective legal practitioners on their behalf, only some of the offences charged in an information have been tried, the provisions of this Section shall apply in respect of those offences only.

208 Power to reserve decision on question raised at trial

The Supreme Court may reserve the giving of its final decision on any question raised at the trial of a person for any offence and its decision whenever given shall be deemed to have been given during the sittings in which the trial was held.

209 Power to reserve decision on question arising in the course of trial

- (1) Where a person has, in a trial before the Supreme Court, been convicted of an offence, the Judge may reserve for further consideration any question which has arisen in the course of the trial and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial.
- (2) Where the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to prison or, if the Judge thinks fit, be admitted to bail and upon such further consideration of the question so reserved the Judge may affirm or quash the conviction and shall be deemed to have done so during the sittings in which the trial was held.

210 Objections cured by verdict

No judgment shall be stayed or reserved on the ground of any objection which if made after the information was read over to the accused, or during the trial, might have been cured by the Court, nor for any informality in swearing the witnesses or any of them.

211 Evidence, etc, admissible after finding of guilt

- (1) Where the Court has found any accused guilty, it may, before or after conviction, receive such evidence as it thinks fit, in order to inform itself as to the sentence or order most appropriate to the case.
- (2) Where the Court has found any accused guilty of any offence, it may, if it thinks fit, with his or her consent and the consent of the prosecutor take into consideration in deciding what sentence or order is most appropriate in the case any other untried offence of a like character which the accused admits having committed and, where the accused is convicted of several offences, the Court shall note on the record of the proceedings the count in respect of which any such untried offence is taken into account.
- (3) Where under subsection (2), any untried offence has been taken into account by the Court:
 - (a) the accused shall not be liable to be tried or punished thereafter in any proceedings for that offence or for any other offence constituted entirely by all or any of the facts constituting that offence:

Provided that, where on appeal the accused's conviction for the offence in respect of which the untried offence has been taken into account is quashed, he or she shall be liable to be tried for that untried offence but evidence of his or her admission of that offence to the Court, or to a person with a view to his or her admitting it in order that it might be taken into account in those proceedings, shall not be admissible except at the request, or with the consent, of the accused; and

- (b) for the purpose of Sections 125 and 127, the accused shall be deemed to have been convicted of that untried offence.

212 Drawing up of conviction, sentence or order

- (1) A conviction, sentence or order under Section 190, Section 194 or Section 207 shall, if required, be afterwards drawn up and shall be certified by the Registrar.

212A Incapacity of Judge

This Section applies if the presiding Judge becomes incapable of proceeding with the trial.

In any such case the accused person shall remain in custody, and may be again put on his or her trial. But he or she has the same rights with respect to admission to bail as upon an original committal for trial for the offence with which he or she is charged, and any justice may, in a proper case, admit him or her to bail accordingly.
